Founded with a core collection of works from A. Reynolds and Eleanor Morse, the Museum has made significant additions to its collection over the years.

In 1942, the Morses visited a traveling Dalí retrospective at the Cleveland Museum of Art organized by the Museum of Modern Art in New York and became fascinated with the artist’s work. On March 21, 1943, the Morses bought their first Dalí painting – Daddy Longlegs of the Evening – Hope! (1940). This was the first of many acquisitions, which would culminate 40 years later in the preeminent collection of Dalí’s work in America. On April 13, 1943, the Morses met Salvador Dalí and his wife Gala in New York, initiating a long, rich friendship with regular visits to the Dalís’ villa in Port Lligat, Spain.

The Morses first displayed their Dalí paintings in their home, and by the mid-1970s decided to donate their entire collection. A Wall Street Journal article titled, “U.S. Art World Dillydallies Over Dalí,” caught the attention of the St. Petersburg, FL community who rallied to bring the collection to the area. The Dalí Museum first opened its doors in 1982 in St. Petersburg. The distinguished new building, which opened on January 11, 2011, enables the Museum to better protect and display the collection, to welcome the public, and to educate and promote enjoyment. In a larger sense, it is a place of beauty dedicated to understanding and transformation.

The Dalí’s stunning new building opened on January 11, 2011. Designed by architect Yann Weymouth of HOK, the structure combines the rational with the fantastical: a simple rectangle with 18-inch thick hurricane-proof walls out of which erupts a large free-form geodesic glass bubble known as “The Enigma.” As a whole, the Museum spans more than 68,000 square feet.

The Enigma

The Enigma, which is made up of 1,062 triangular pieces of glass, stands 75 feet at its tallest point, a twenty-first century homage to the dome that adorns Dalí’s museum in Spain. Inside, the Museum houses another unique architectural feature - a helical staircase - recalling Dalí’s obsession with spirals and the “world beyond,” as well as his fascination with the double helical shape of the DNA molecule.

The Avant-Garden

Ideally situated on the scenic waterfront, The Dalí’s Avant-garden is inspired by the artist’s fascination with the duality of art and nature and creates a unique environment of learning and tranquility. The Mathematical Garden allows visitors to experience the relationship between math and nature, and a labyrinth and Wish Tree in the southeast corner invite exploration and imagination.

Ground Floor

Visitors enter through the The Dalí Museum Store, which showcases the largest collection of Dalí-inspired merchandise in the world. Over 85% of its items are exclusive to the Museum. Café Gala offers light, Spanish-inspired tapas and fare with indoor and outdoor seating. The ground floor also houses a theater, education room and community room.

Top Floor

All of the galleries are located on the third floor. In between the two main wings of the Museum, guests can snap a photo or relax in an overlook with breathtaking views of the gardens and the Bay through the Enigma. The James Family Wing holds the permanent collection of Dalí’s works. The Hough Family Wing hosts special exhibitions.

A flan-like dessert called crema catalana tops the pastry selection, along with tiramisu and mantecados (Spanish cookies). A select offering of beer and wine is also available, including the Café’s signature Cava Rosado (Spanish sparkling rosé champagne).

The Dalí Museum Store is a place to discover hundreds of Dalí-inspired gift items, a wide book selection, on-trend and elegant wearable art, Dalí fragrances, canvas giclées, melting clock accessories, tableware and drinkware, wall art, artful home décor, watches and jewelry, stationery, art supplies, mementos and much more. The merchandise serves as a memory of The Dalí experience and reflects a surreal attitude and the spirit of our collection.
